Armies and navisa cannot conquer the will to be governed only in accordance with the common welfare; it may be assumed the Great Ruler so contained it. The younger Pitt's description, in Parliament, of the American revolution; may be accepted as a record of all attempts to substitute power for right. He said of the war, " It was conscived in injustice, nurtured in fully, its footstops were marked with alsoghter and devastation. The nation was drained of its best blood and its vital resources, for which nothing was received in return but a series of institution victories and of lisgraceful defeats; victories obtained over men fighting for the holy cause of liberty, or defeats which filled the land with mourning for the loss of dear and valuable relatives, stain in a detested and imports quarrel." Is not this the Southern Confederacy ! That such a war was undertaken by the Northern States by means of mercenary hirelings, after they had virtually subverted the government by the abrogation of the "fugitive slave law," is not maker of sur-prise; for their cupidity had been excited to undertake to overthrow the South, and convert the profits of the soil to their exclusive advantage; but that the people of the West, an agricultural people, justly proud of their independence, armsitive of their rights, should place the wastern side by side, not with their Northern asso is exbut with the hired roffians and outcasts of Etrope, tempted into the Northern ranks by liberate to plunder, to assist in the work or big d and rapine, when it was manifest if the North were successful, their soil would be made to exetribute its all to the greed of traffic, and the thirst for gain which lurks in the atmosphere of the loom and spindle, is indeed cause it amorno, mant. And now that the so-called United Sixt a government have loaded the people with a dobt without end, who will contribute to pay it, for its extinction is an impossibility ! Not the trading and manufacturing North; import duries will be covered in the price of goods, and manufacturers protected by those duties will make their enatomers provide the amount of faxes in the price of their fabrics. Now that the South is gone, the West alone then must most this state blain sons cries at this moment, will yield its fruits only for tribute to a power as reckless of gaish in the hospital in defence of us all.
